6:00 A.M.

IN PLANE SIGHT At the crack of dawn, Chauhan zips over to the airport to catch an early flight. "Heading to New York City for a Food Network event," the chef — who lives in Franklin, Tenn. — tells Us.

9:00 P.M.

READY FOR TAKEOFF "An evening flight to end the day so I can wake up and take my kids to school," the mom of two says of wrapping up a whirlwind 15 hours in the Big Apple.

11:30 A.M.

SITTING PRETTY After sightseeing ("I love checking out different hotels and parts of town," she explains), the TV personality, 46, gets camera-ready: "I always go with bright colors and glitter because it pops on screen."

4:00 P.M.

CULINARY CREW The Chopped judge finalizes a "re-creation of one of my Tournament of Champion dishes" for the event before catching up with her "rockstar chef friends," Britt Rescigno, Mei Lin and Jet Tila.

1:00 P.M.

HOT PLATES Next, Chauhan checks out her signature on the Food Network Wall of Fame: "Love seeing the names of friends and incredible talent right alongside mine."

5:30 P.M.

HAPPY MEAL To wrap up work, Chauhan enjoys a "quick toast" with her colleagues before heading to a Manhattan hotspot for dinner: "Singapore chili crab from Singapura," she says. "So delicious!"

HOLLYWOOD DADS

Family Values

» Randall Park's parenting style includes doting on daughter Ruby, 11 — whom he shares with wife Jae Suh Park — even during difficult moments. “Our biggest challenge is parenting itself, especially when dealing with a child with special needs,” the actor, 49, tells Us. “We want nothing more than to be the perfect parents for Ruby, but there is no such thing as ‘perfect’ — so we just do our best, knowing that we are always coming from a place of love.” Here, Park opens up about life as a girl dad.

Q: How has back-to-school season been going for your family?

Ruby started at a new school this year, so I was super nervous while she was so calm and cool about it all. Thankfully, she had a great first day and totally digs her new school!

Q: Any go-to school tips for parents?

Pack your kid's favorite foods for lunch, especially on the first day. Amazon's Back to School shopping guide has fun Lunch Box Notes that have fun facts. I like to scribble a little on the back, just so she knows I'm thinking of her.

Q: What activities is Ruby into lately?

Ruby loves anything arts and crafts related. She's always drawing, painting [and] making stuff with her hands. I was the same way when I was her age, but she's a way better artist than I ever was.

“Nothing brings me more joy and fulfillment than being a dad to my amazing daughter,” Park says.

PARENTING LIKE A PRO

» Since retiring from the NFL in 2020, Eli Manning has been using his free time to chauffeur his children, Ava, 12, Lucy, 10, Caroline, 8, and Charles, 4, around. (Mom is wife Abby McGrew.) "I'm an Uber driver, basically," the former New York Giant, 42, told Us while promoting Corona Extra's Fine Life Playbook. "The weekends are [used to] divide and conquer between my wife and I. [With] four children, [there's] a lot going on." That's putting it mildly: Manning's brood is running the gamut when it comes to sports and activities. "We have a swimmer, lacrosse players, a hockey player and one that's more gymnastics and dance," he shares. "[They're] all doing a little bit of everything." Though the athlete has stepped in to lend his expertise a few times ("I enjoy coaching my kids' teams until about fifth grade," Manning explains, noting he tends to stick with "younger ages"), his favorite moments are when his family of six is together. "A lot of it [is] finding times where we can all be in one spot, whether [we] go to the beach, the pool or are at our house," the two-time Super Bowl winner adds. "It's [about] having lots of laughs with the family."

"They're all pretty athletic," Manning shares of his kiddos.

Reality Check

Arie Luyendyk Jr. and wife Lauren divvy up duties when it concerns their kids, Alessi, 4, and 2-year-old twins Senna and Lux. "We fall into roles and switch every night," the Bachelor alum, 41, told Us while promoting Aruba I Do. "One's cooking, and one's entertaining the kids." Arie advises other couples to do things equally as well, "so one partner doesn't feel like they're doing most of the heavy lifting."

Where the Heart Is

Tyler Baltierra admits moving into a new home earlier this year while wrangling three young kids wasn't easy. "That whole transition was wild," the Teen Mom: The Next Chapter star, 31 — who shares Nova, 8, Vaeda, 4, and 2-year-old Rya with wife Catelynn Lowell — tells Us. Still, he wouldn't change a thing: "It feels like a full circle moment for us to be able to provide it for our kids and give them their own space."

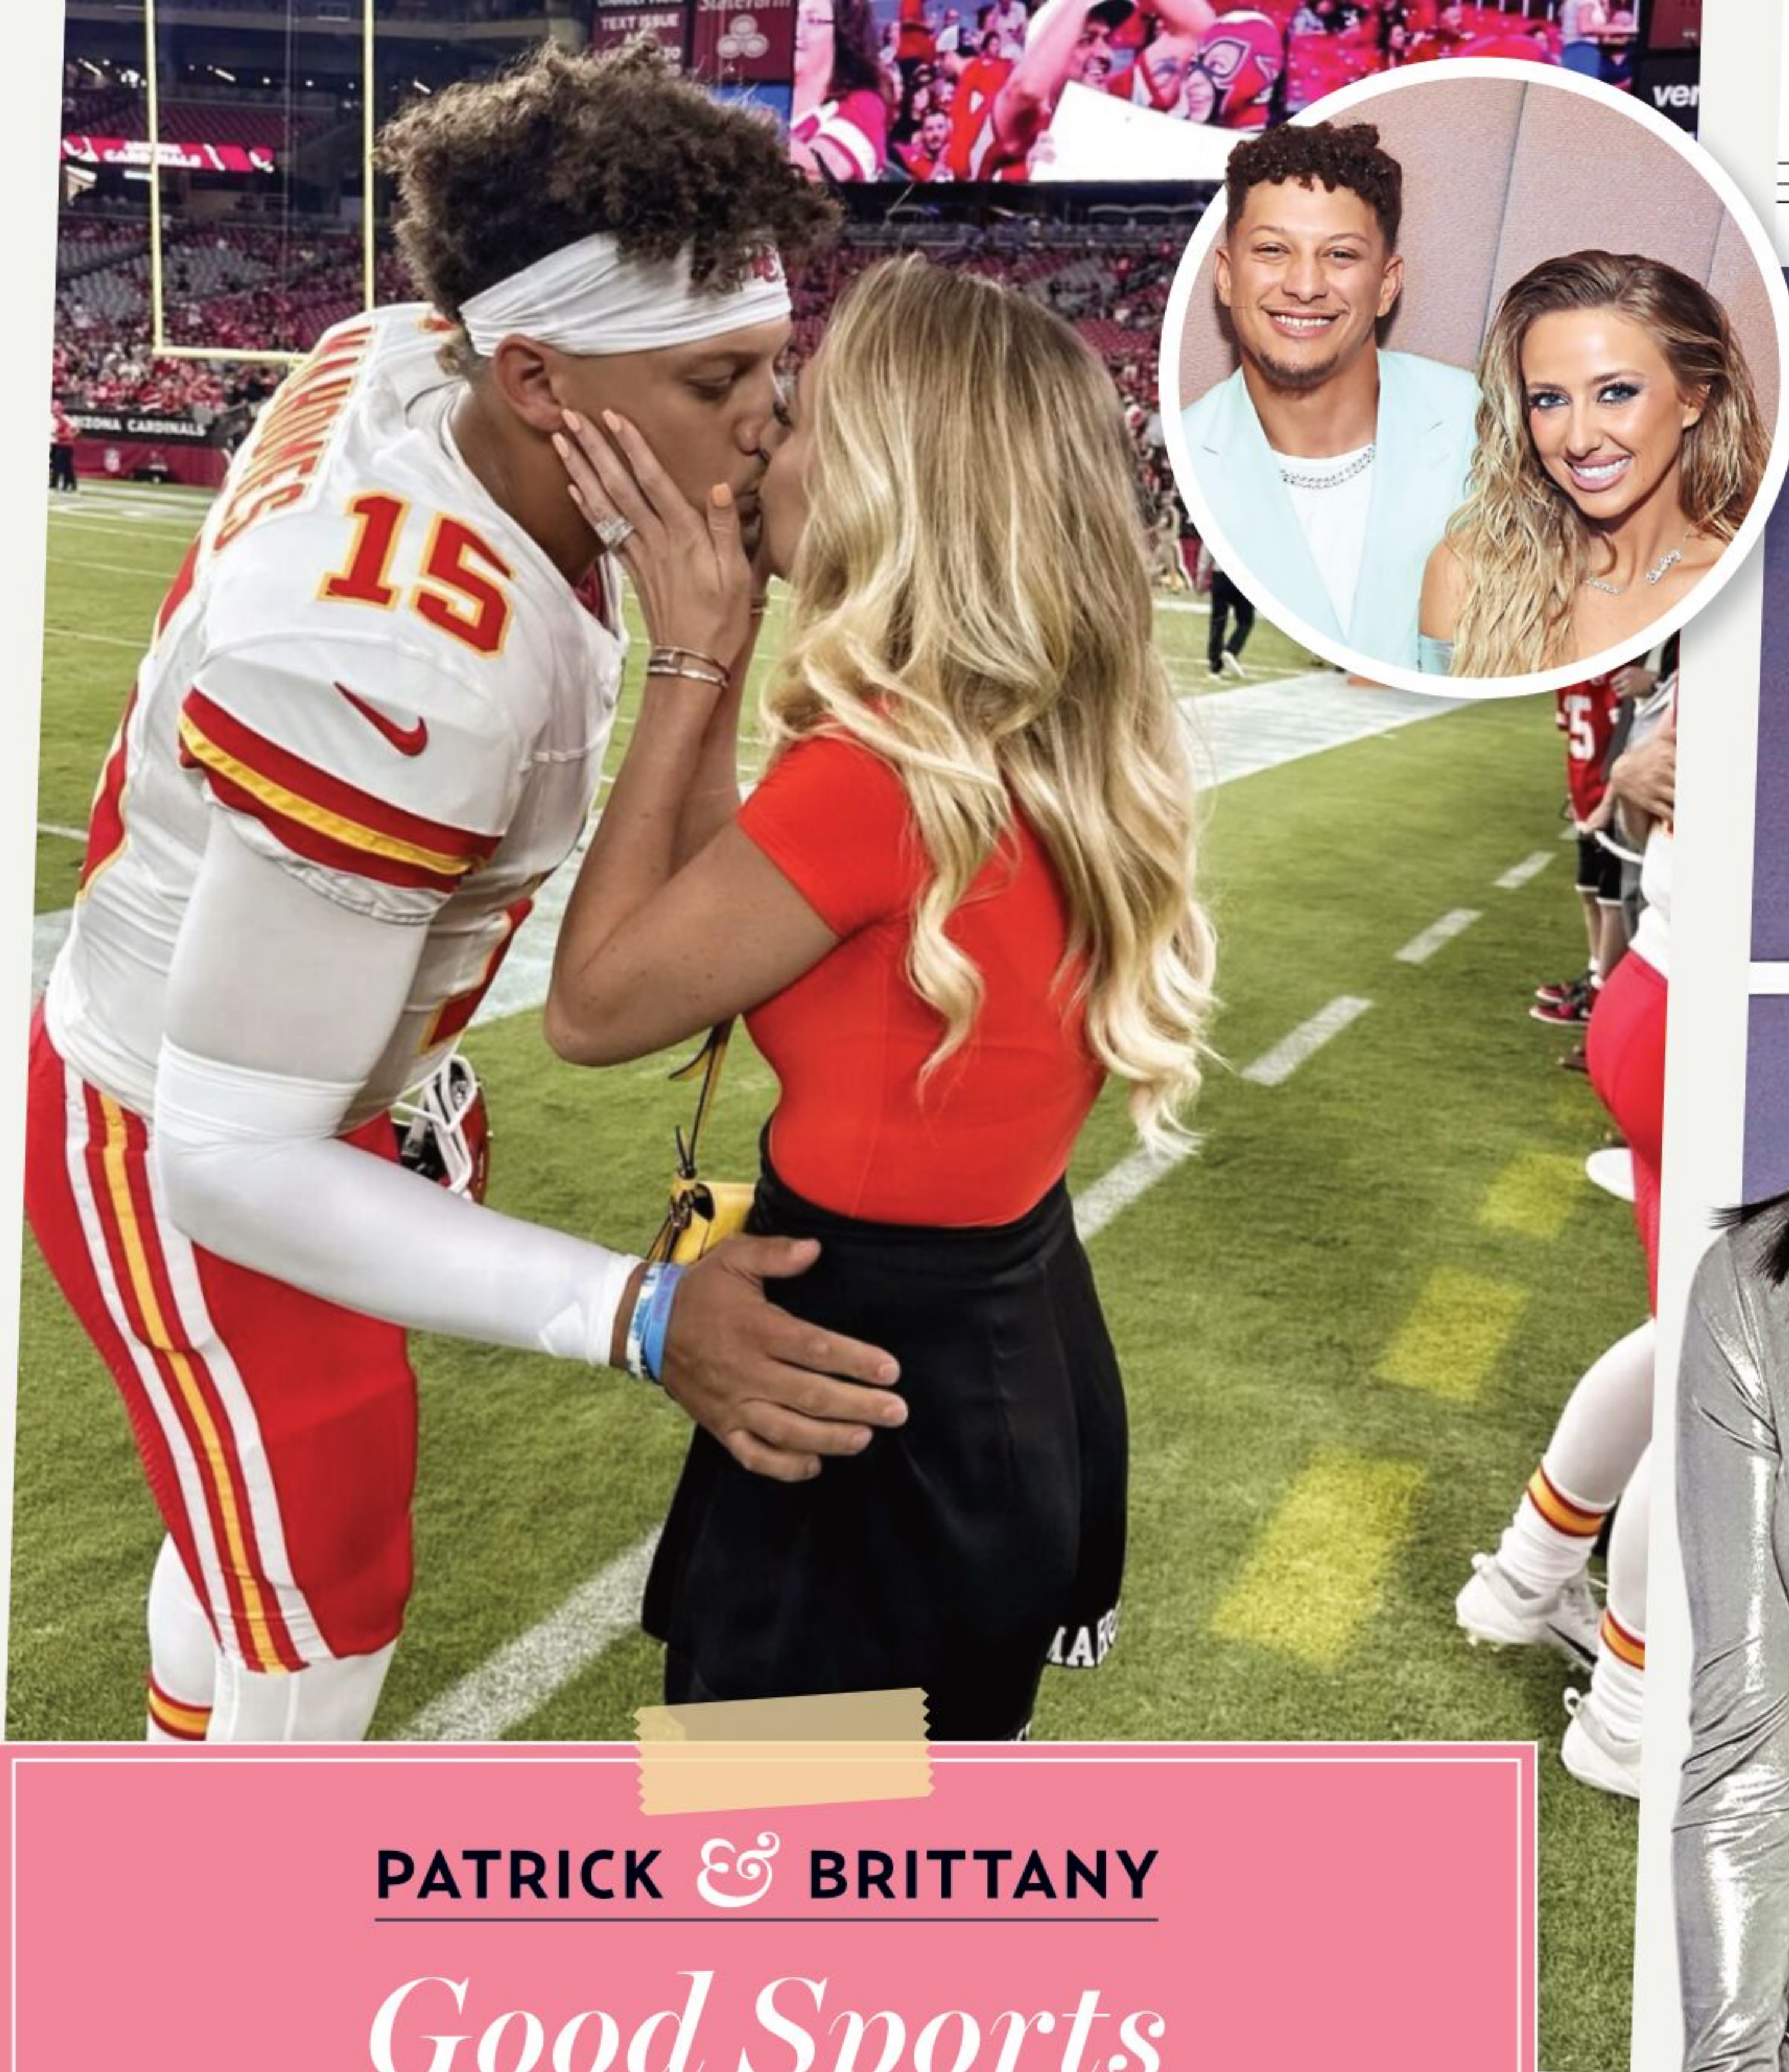

Love Lives

"Everyone knows they'd love to [have] a baby as soon as possible," shares a source.

JON & ANNA

A Better Man

➔ After two months of marriage, Jon Hamm, 52, and Anna Osceola, 35, are still very much in the newlywed stage. "They've been playing house and enjoying romantic nights in, just the two of them," a source tells Us. "Jon's gotten so much better about setting work aside or turning down invites with his buddies to enjoy couples time," the source continues. "Everyone's noticed how his wife is his No. 1 priority now, and he seems proud to be putting her on this pedestal."

PATRICK & BRITTANY

Good Sports

➔ Football season has arrived, and Patrick and Brittany Mahomes are ready. "They have it down to a science now," an insider tells Us of juggling the sport and their marriage. "Brittany knows when it's best to show up and support Patrick and when to stay home to take care of their two kids." As far as quality time, Patrick, 27, and Brittany, 28, switch it up between "date nights and home-cooked healthy meals [together]." Adds the source, "She takes great care of [him] during the season."

JESSEL & PAVIT

Bedroom Talk

➔ RHONY's Jessel Taank shocked fans when she opened up on the series about her lack of sex with hubby Pavit Randhawa after the birth of their now-2-year-old twins. "A lot of women don't talk about how they're feeling postpartum... you've had a baby, you've had a C-section, you're trying to [manage] this new life," the star, 43, tells Us, admitting that they needed to learn how to balance their marriage and family life. "No one wants to see the positives," she adds. "Why can't you celebrate a man for standing by his family and his wife in those moments?"

New Tune

Season 24 of The Voice is about to kick off sans Blake Shelton — and the country singer, 47, and wife Gwen Stefani, 53, couldn't be happier. "It's been such a relief to have more flexibility with his schedule," a source tells Us. "Seeing Blake ultra-relaxed and in family mode is so endearing to Gwen and reminds her what a catch he is."

IRINA & BRADLEY

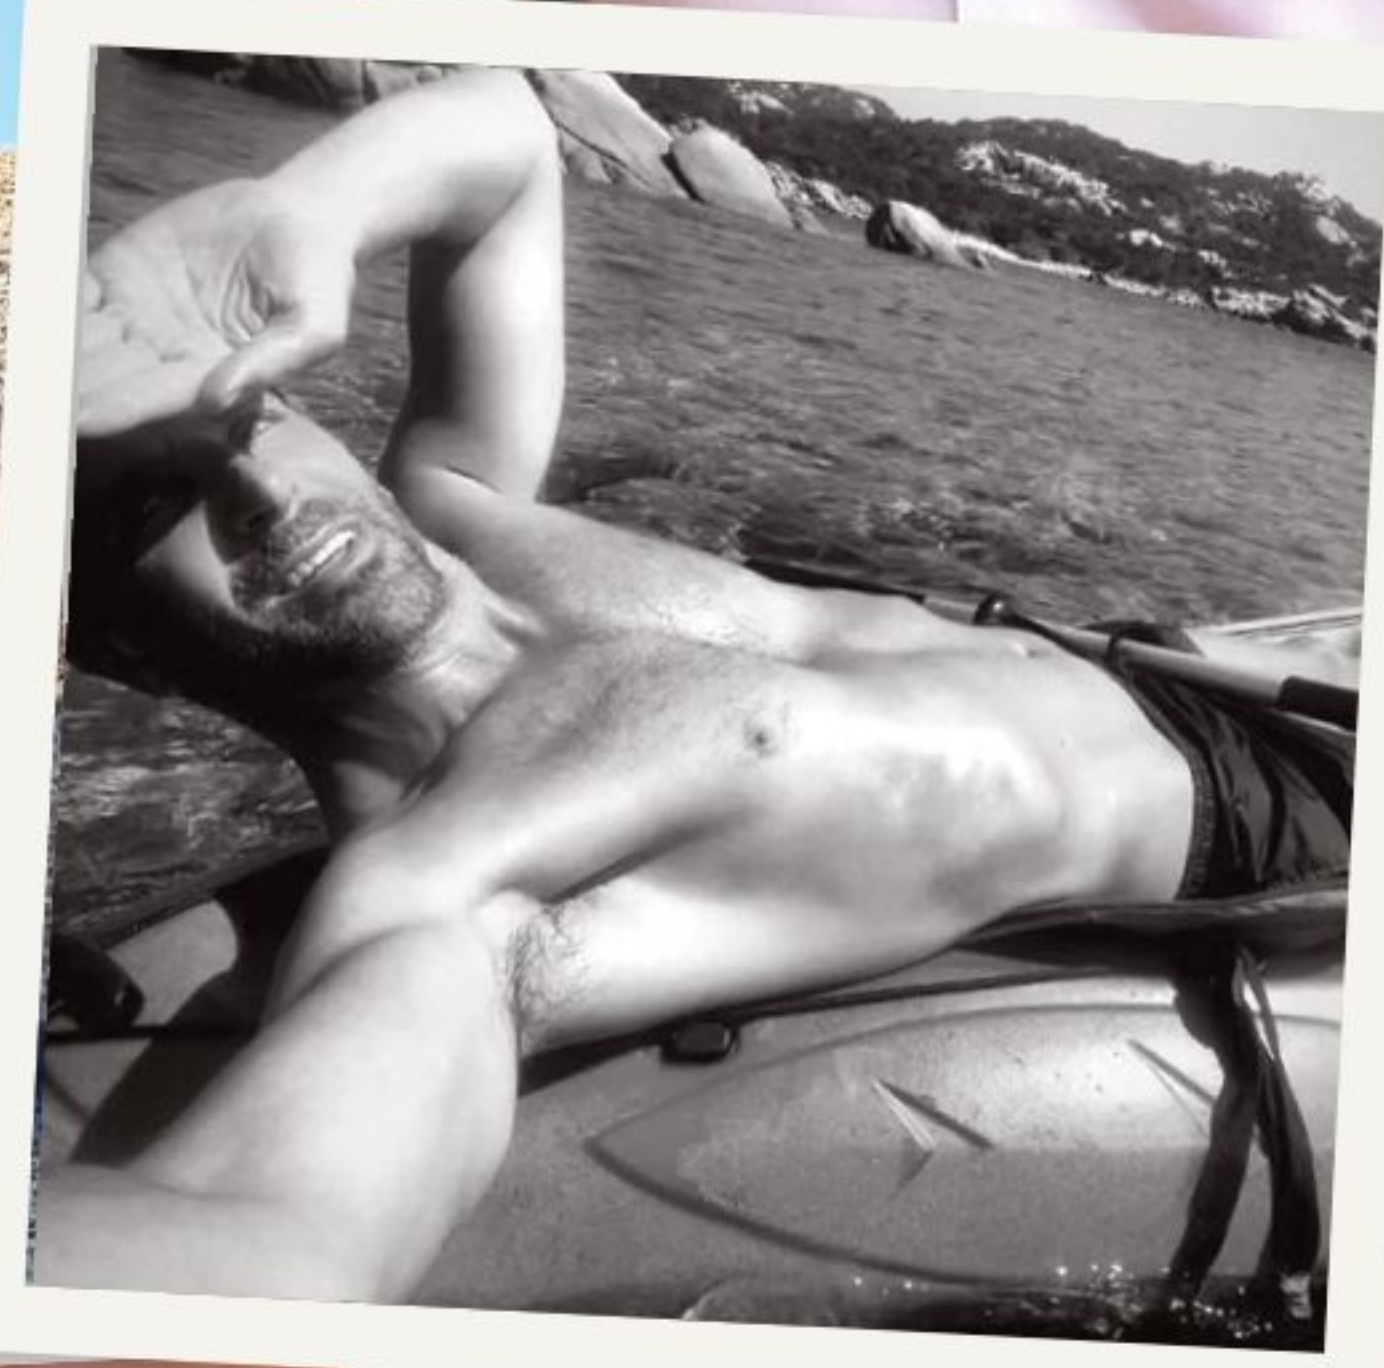

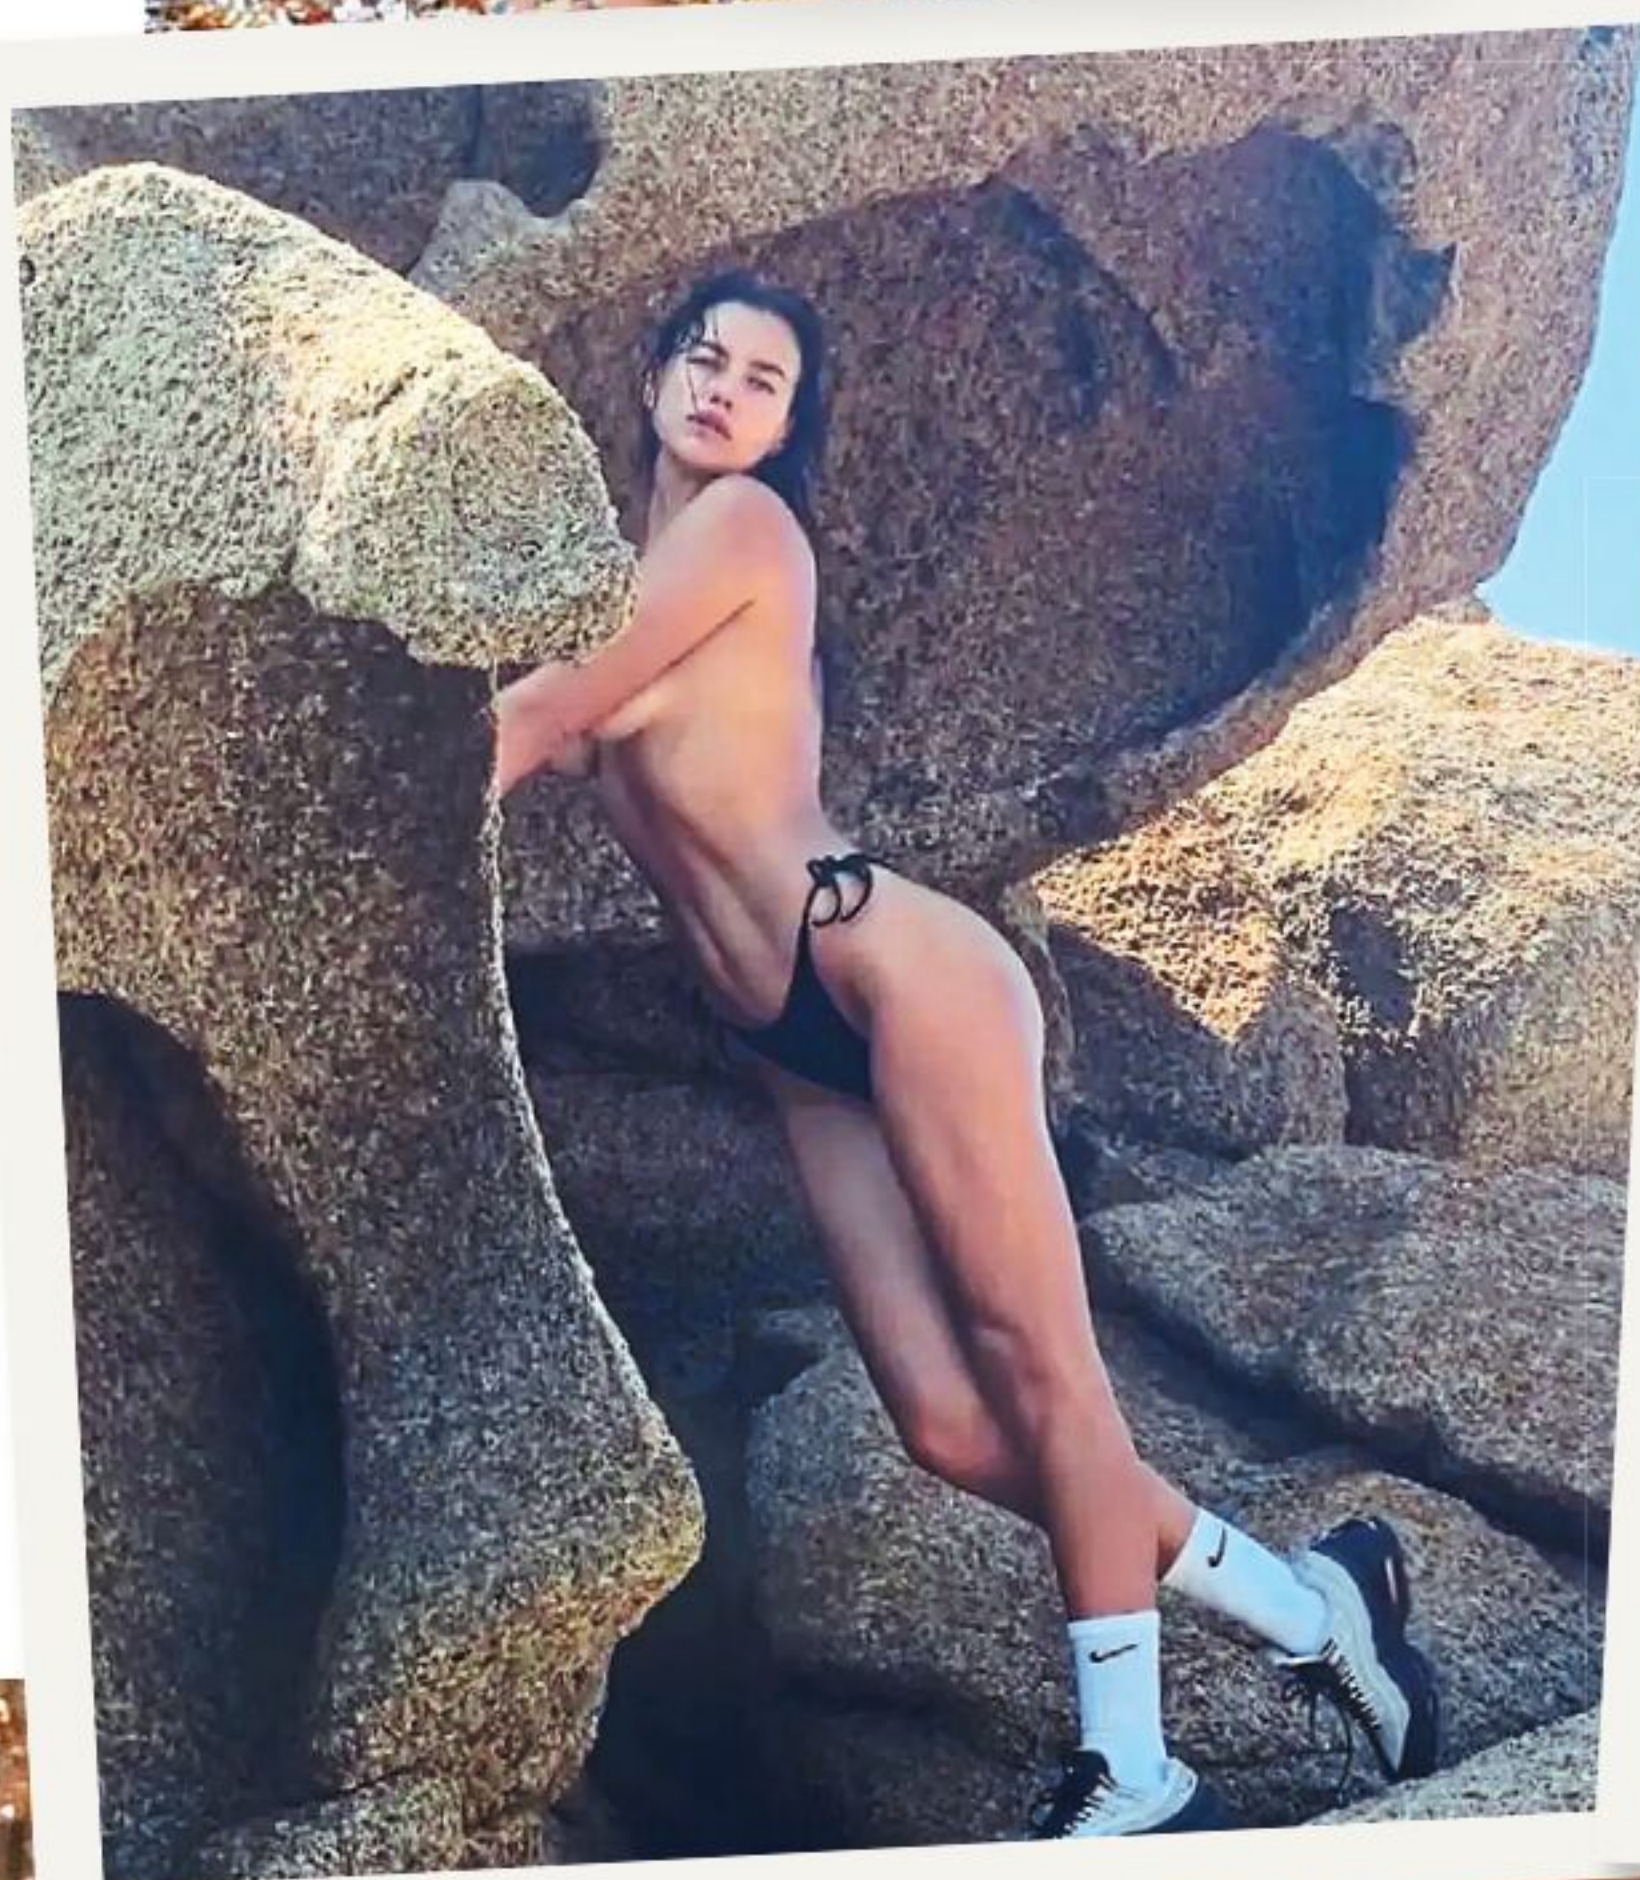

Friendly Exes

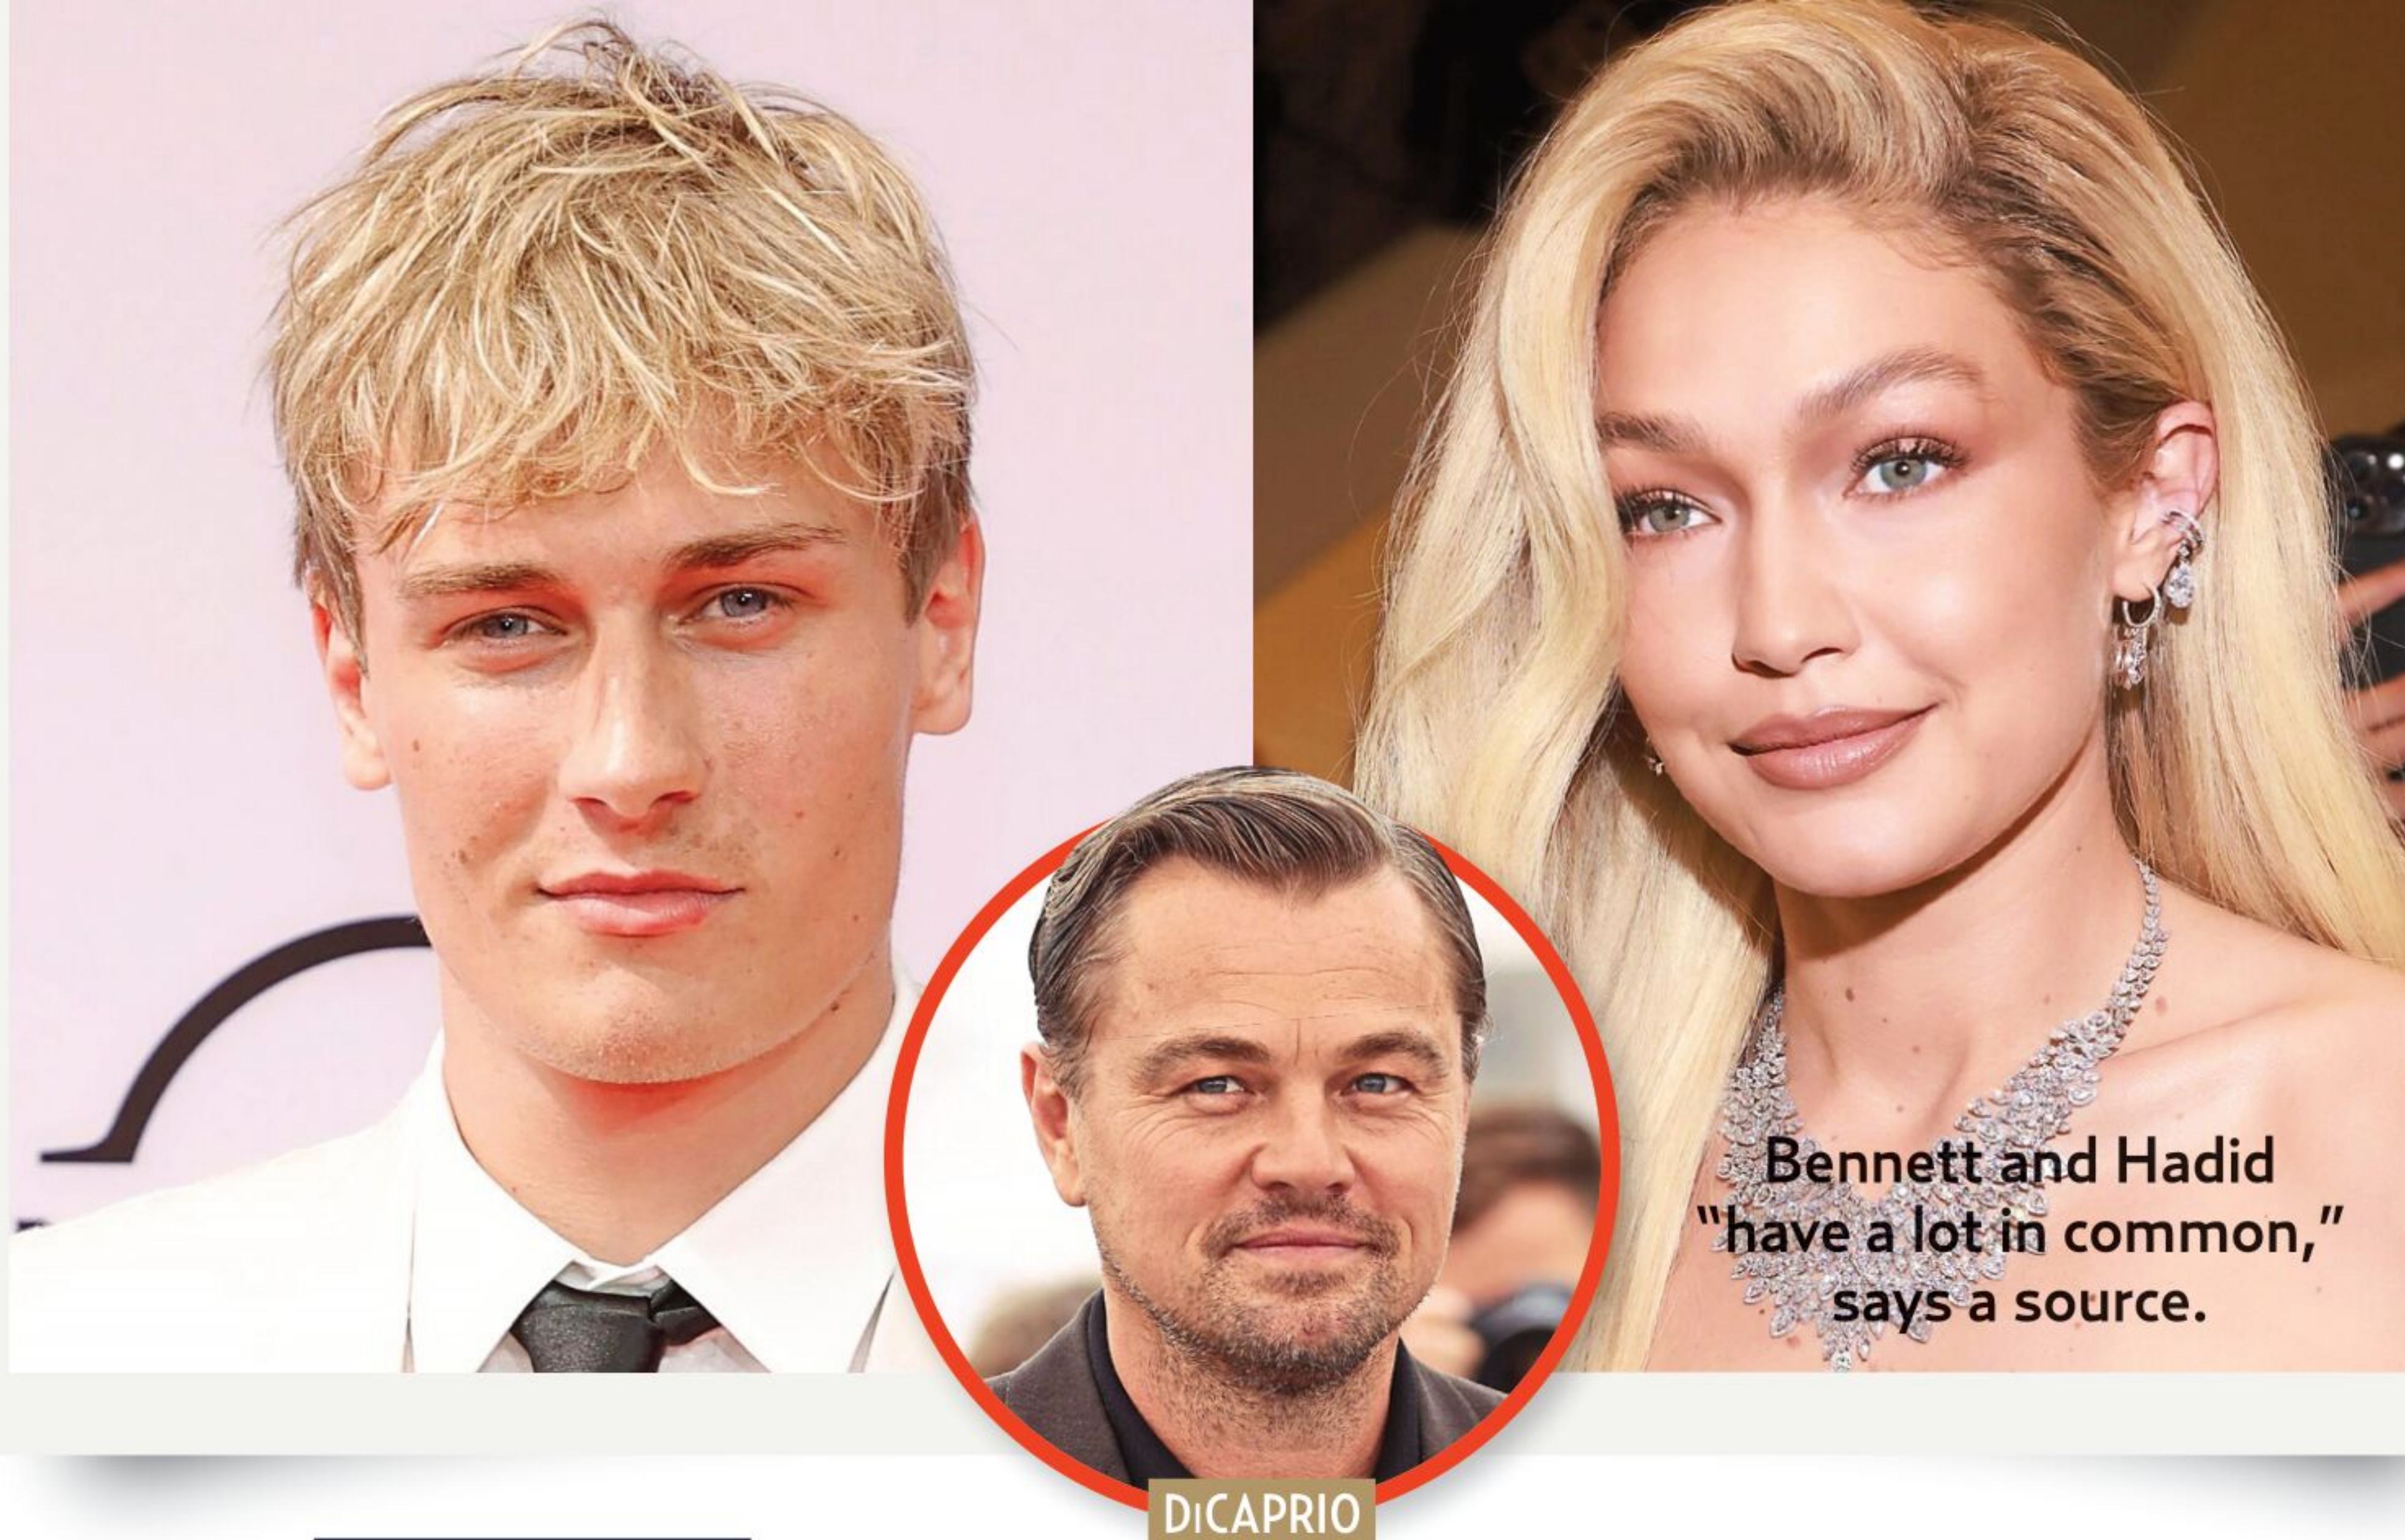

Us reveals what's really going on between the pair amid reunion rumors

Bradley Cooper and Irina Shayk's cozy summer vacation in Italy with daughter Lea, 6 — and the topless photo shoot the model shared from it — raised a few eyebrows. But an insider tells Us that despite the rumors, nothing is going on between the exes. "Bradley and Irina are closer than close. They have a friendship that extends way beyond coparenting," says the insider, noting that Shayk, 37, and Cooper, 48, take a family trip "every year." (Last August, the pair reunited for a tropical getaway.) "Their daughter goes with them," adds the insider, "and they get to bond as a family of three." Some may find their closeness odd, but the insider points out that the duo's 2019 split was "extremely" amicable. "It was a genuine case of them both wanting more independence and making a pact to stay great friends." While Shayk recently moved on with Tom Brady, a second insider insists that the NFL legend, 46, is unfazed by her close relationship with Cooper. "It's really none of his business," says the second insider. "Tom's focused on his kids and career. [He] likes spending time with Irina, but things are still very new."

Shayk shared a shirtless snap of Cooper on her Insta Story and a topless photo of herself on her grid. "They're always taking pics of each other," says an insider.

GIGI HADID

Moving On

Sparks are flying between Gigi Hadid and music producer Cole Bennett. “They’ve been friends for a few years, but things are moving in a romantic direction,” a source tells Us of the pair, who were seen out twice over the last few weeks. “They’ve been playing coy about their status, but they mesh really well together.” Hadid, 28, has been on-and-off with

Leonardo DiCaprio, 48, since last fall, but “she’s ready for something more serious,” notes a second source, adding that Bennett, 27, fits the bill. “Gigi finds him refreshing, and he lights up around her.” DiCaprio isn’t licking his wounds: On Aug. 22, he was spotted getting ice cream with model Vittoria Ceretti, 25, in Santa Barbara. (Ceretti has been married to Matteo Milleri since 2020, but another source believes they may be “on the rocks.”) “Gigi’s not concerned if he’s dating Vittoria,” says the first source. “She and Leo have fun when they’re together, but it’s not the type of situation Gigi would settle down for.”

Mom Mode!

» Life has been one big adventure for Maria Menounos and hubby Keven Undergaro since welcoming their baby girl, Athena, in June. “She’s the greatest thing that ever happened to me,” Menounos, 45, told Us while promoting the new limited-edition RXBAR ManifX bar. “Every day gets better. I was playing with her yesterday, [and] she was getting ticklish for the first time. If I put my hands behind her feet when we do tummy time, she makes it to the other side so fast. We have a very advanced little girl!” Though caring for a newborn can be overwhelming, Menounos says that she and Undergaro have a solid system. “Sometimes I’m eating, and Keven’s changing her diaper — and we’re just tagging in and out,” she jokes. “I [do] have a nurse helping me at night. Because of everything I’ve gone through, my health has to come first, so I need sleep,” she explains. But “we’re all with [Athena]. She’s just pure joy.”

AMAL & GEORGE

Summer of Love

"[It's] the easiest thing we have done in our lives thus far," George (with Amal on Aug. 29 in Venice) has said of marriage.

After almost nine years of marriage, Amal and George Clooney have found their stride. "They are more in love than ever and they can't picture their lives with anyone else," a source tells Us of the pair, who share 6-year-old twins Alexander and Ella. "They've formed a real partnership, taking turns with taking the kids to activities and preparing their [meals]." As Us previously reported, Amal, 45, and George, 62, have been staying at their home on Italy's Lake Como, where they've enjoyed plenty of family time. "The twins [have loved] their summer. They take boat rides, do water sports and have a small group of friends they have playdates with," says the source. "Amal has a big home office and is working on cases this summer, but she and George really tried to do life the 'European way' and take August off work." While the duo was seen arriving in Venice ahead of the city's annual film festival on Aug. 29, the outing was for pleasure: "It's a fun date for them," notes the source. "It's so close to their home, and they love catching up with friends."

Under the Radar

» Kylie Jenner and Timothée Chalamet's romance has cooled down — but it isn't over! "Things are very casual," an insider tells Us. "They have a great time when they're together." On Aug. 24, the beauty mogul was spied arriving at the actor's Beverly Hills pad amid rumors they'd called it quits, and days later, they were seen separately leaving his home. According to the insider, Jenner, 26, and Chalamet, 27, "haven't spent much time together recently because [of their] busy schedules, but they're still communicating on a pretty regular basis." And Jenner's still very much open to seeing where things go. Adds the insider: "She's having fun."

Rigsby says that writing his book was "therapeutic."

Spinning His Story

Beloved Peloton instructor Cody Rigsby is known for bringing high energy and empowerment on the bike. But in his new memoir, XOXO, Cody: An Opinionated Homosexual's Guide to Self-Love, Relationships, and Tacitful Pettiness (out Sept. 12), the DWTS alum, 36, shows another side of himself. "The book is about self-love. I don't think you can love yourself without loving the vulnerable parts of you," Rigsby tells Us. "That's why I approached [my memoir] in that way of serious — but a lot of fun as well."

In the book, you share your coming out journey. Why was that important for you to include?

There are still people who are holding back who they are, [so] I hope... [it] inspires them to live their authenticity.

You got your start as a backup dancer for Luann de Lesseps. What was that like?

We were literally on a back porch, and there were fake dollars involved because Money Can't Buy You Class! We did most of the work — and so did Auto-Tune, if you know what I'm saying.

Best celeb encounter over the years?

[Pink] asked me to host her album release party. I had recently gotten back with my boyfriend; we'd taken a little hiatus. I [asked her for] words of advice because I knew that she and her husband had taken a break [years ago]. She was like, "Whatever happened in that six months — whoever you slept with, whoever they slept with... let it go... enjoy what you have."

How has Peloton changed your life?

People [say] that I've inspired them or I've helped them. I think it's a very reciprocal relationship. It's allowed me to find myself, love myself and, most importantly, find my purpose.

KRISTIN UNFILTER

Us sat down with the star in Nashville to talk about her new podcast, dating life and why she no longer cares what people think of her

BY ANDREA SIMPSON
& JAIME HARKIN

Kristin Cavallari has never been one to censor herself. “If you know anything about me, it’s that I’m honest,” says the star, who found fame on MTV’s Laguna Beach before branching out into hosting, writing cookbooks and running her Uncommon Beauty and Uncommon James lines. Still, she admits she’s had a bit of a wall up — until now. Chatting with Us at the Fairlane Hotel in Nashville, the 36-year-old mom of three (she shares Camden, 11, Jaxon, 9, and Saylor, 7, with ex-husband Jay Cutler) reveals she’s “putting it all out there” on her new podcast, aptly titled Let’s Be Honest with Kristin Cavallari, premiering on Sept. 12. “Since I first started on TV at 17, my image has been controlled to a degree,” she says. “So this is the first thing I’ve done where I’m like, ‘This is the real me,’” she explains, adding, “I’m in a really good place in my life, and I feel like I can finally open that door and let people in.”

What made you decide to do this podcast now?

I’ve been offered a podcast for more than 10 years. I wasn’t ready before because to have a successful podcast, you have to be vulnerable, and I wasn’t in a place where I could do that. I’ve always had no filter, but I’ve kept the audience at arm’s length. Once I signed on, I knew I had to be completely myself.

What topics will you cover?

It’s a good mix. I want to have men come on to shed light on dating. We’ll also focus a lot on women’s inspiring stories. I’ll talk about spirituality, too, and have psychic mediums come on.

Will listeners be surprised to learn anything about you?

Everything I’ve done in my career — TV, the books, Uncommon James — has only ever been a little piece of me. It’s like social media — you get a snapshot of someone’s life. So I think people are going to be surprised to really get to know me.

ED

"I promise you I will never do another reality show about my life," says the star. "It's not me anymore."

Cavallari's new podcast debuts Sept. 12. "There's a heavy focus on dating, but also relationships in general," she says.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY ERIC RYAN ANDERSON

“I STILL VERY MUCH BELIEVE IN MARRIAGE AND LOVE — EVEN AFTER ALL THESE HORRIBLE DATES.”

Cavallari loves life in Franklin, Tenn. “I’m so happy we live here,” she says. “There’s some normalcy.”

What do you hope people will gain from it?

I want to build a community and have conversations about dating, health and friendships. Like right now, I don’t have time for new girlfriends. How do you have that conversation with the new moms you meet at school? How do you say, “I really do like you, but I literally don’t have time for a new friend”?

What’s the latest with your love life?

I’m dating. I’ve gone through phases of going on a million first dates, and [some] where I’m not dating at all. At the moment, it’s not my priority, but I’m open to it.

Are you on dating apps?

Everyone tells me to get on the apps, but someone can be amazing on paper, and you meet them, and they’re a dud. I want that passion. I feel like if it’s meant to be, he’ll find me. I don’t know where — I hardly ever leave my house! Hopefully it will happen at the grocery store. [Laughs.]

Have you been set up by friends?

Listen, I’ve tried every avenue. I hate being set up by friends because I hate having to say, “I just wasn’t into them.” I feel bad.

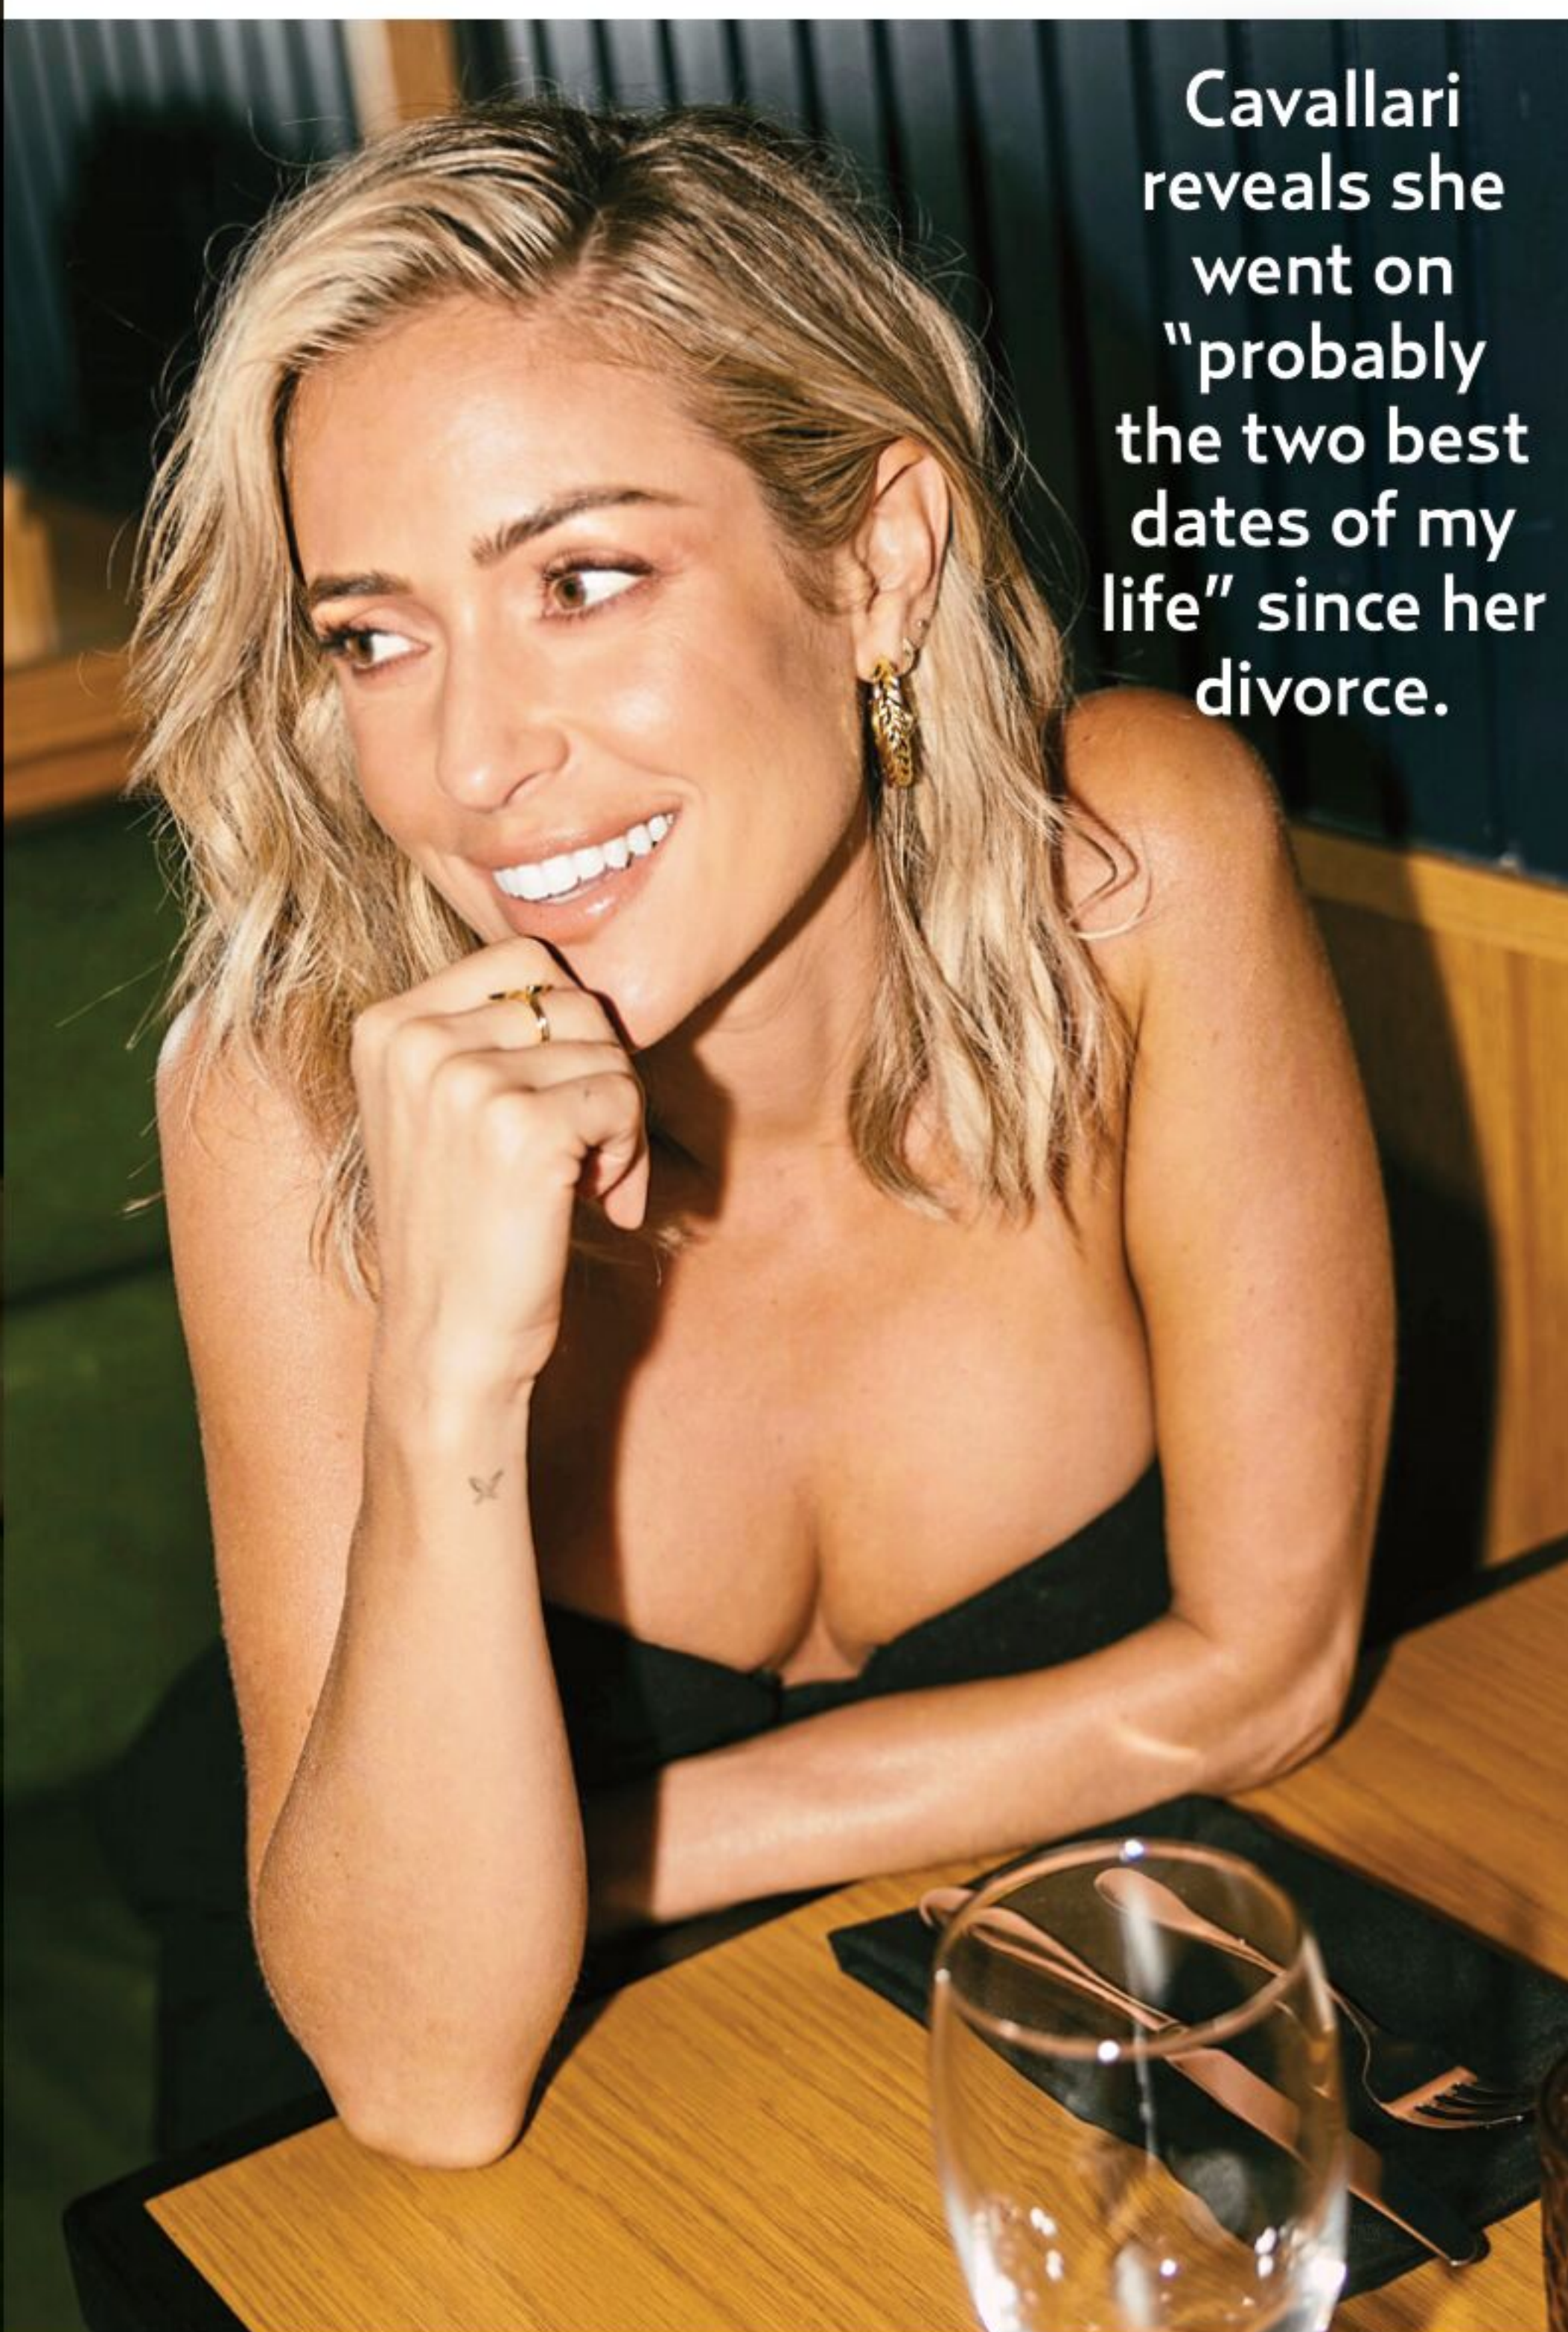

"People thought my life was really glamorous... [but] my day-to-day life is extremely normal," says the Uncommon James founder.

What's the hardest part about dating as a mom of three?

I'll go on a first date with someone and sit there thinking, "Could you be a stepfather to my children?" And then I'm like, "No, you suck." The good thing is I'm not going to waste my time. I have really high standards now because of my kids.

Have they met any dates?

They met one person once because they were a fan of his. They asked me to go out with him so that they could meet him. I'm very open with them; they know what's going on in my love life. And they have strong opinions! I haven't found someone who's special enough to be around them yet.

Cavallari reveals she went on "probably the two best dates of my life" since her divorce.

What are you looking for in a guy?

A lot of guys want to be needed, so I need someone who's very confident. My life is really great. I love being on my own; I really do. So it has to be someone who can add joy to my life.

You've talked about men sliding into your DMs and said you only respond to dudes with a verified check mark...

Not to sound like an ahole, but I get a lot of DMs. I've seen some really cute guys who aren't verified where I'm like, "Maybe respond to this," but I haven't.

Have you been surprised by any celebs who've reached out to you?

Yeah. I'll talk about it on my podcast, but change the names. It hasn't been anything scandalous, more like, "Oh my God!" where I'm texting all my friends to guess who DM'd me.

Did you go out with any of them?

Oh, yeah. There was a point where I said yes to a lot of dates.

Any terrible experiences?

I went out with an actor in L.A. He was slamming drinks and got up to act out a stunt and ran into the waiter. But for the most part, I've been lucky. I've gone out with all types of guys — actors, musicians, businessmen, Joe Schmo down the street ... I've covered all the bases.

You must be learning a lot about what you really want.

Yes. This is the first time in my life I've been single. My first boyfriend was in eighth grade. Then I met my ex-husband at 23.

You live in Nashville. Is the dating scene there better than in L.A.?

I thought L.A. was bad, but Tennessee is worse! I've dated a couple musicians and let's just say they're not their music. It's a huge letdown. You expect them to express their feelings, and then you're like, "Hello, where did that guy go?" But they don't write their own music! [Laughs.] I'm going to get sh*t for that — people will piece it together.

Have you sworn off musicians?

I've realized entertainment is not for me. It's a whole ego thing that comes with it. I want someone normal. I did the Hollywood thing; it ran its course. It was fun. But now I'm in a more peaceful place in my life.

Are you open to marrying again?

I still very much believe in marriage and love. I was just really young when I met my ex. So I'm open to it — even after all these horrible dates!

Do you have advice for women going through a divorce?

Remind yourself that everything is temporary. It's horrible, but there's light at the end of the tunnel. Allow yourself grace and know that when you get to the other side, it's the most beautiful thing.

You've said you're grateful your parents divorced. Why?

"My kids know they're my priority," shares Cavallari, who still steers clear of showing their faces on social media.

It helps me relate to my kids. My mom never said anything bad about my dad. I really admire that. [It] was something I wanted to do [too].

How is coparenting with Jay?

It's working. We're making the most of it.

You lived in California, but you settled down in Nashville. Why?

I couldn't be happier here. Today my kids are outside riding their bikes all day. There's a real sense of community. It's old school, and I love that. When I got a divorce, everyone thought I'd move back to L.A., but nothing in me wanted to.

Will you stay in Nashville for good?

I am a beach girl, tried and true. I'll end up [near the beach] at some point, I just don't know when.

What are your favorite things to do with your kids?

They all love being in the kitchen — even my 11-year-old son loves baking. We swim. We're going to ride go-karts tomorrow. We like fun stuff like laser tag, go-karts, paintball.

Would you let them do reality TV?

Not until they're 18. I just want them to be kids. I wanted to be older my whole life, and now I'm like, "Why didn't I just enjoy being 18?" We all get there. So just live in the moment.

Do you think Very Cavallari affected your marriage to Jay?

No. Our problems were our problems before doing the show.

What surprised you the most about fame?

It can be really lonely. It's also really fun, and I've done a lot of cool sh*t. But it can be hard to trust people. I was hanging out with a lot of bad people in my early 20s. It felt grimy at times. Being in Tennessee has helped with that.

REALITY CHECK

Cavallari gives Us the behind-the-scenes dish on Laguna Beach and The Hills

STAGE FRIGHT

She recalls filming her first scene for Laguna Beach as a high schooler. "I was outside a Mexican restaurant with Talan [Torriero] wearing a jean skirt and fking Uggs," she says, adding that if she could tell her younger self anything, it would be: "Reel it in. It's not that serious."

NO HARD FEELINGS

Even without showrunners pushing the love triangle angle between Cavallari, Stephen Colletti and Lauren Conrad, Cavallari says she and her Back to the Beach cohost wouldn't have gone the distance. "College would've happened, and we would've broken up."

UNDER PRESSURE

The MTV alum says producers tried to get her to kiss costar Justin Bobby Brescia at the end of her first season of The Hills, but she refused. "I was like, 'No, I'm not doing it. Why am I always the one who wants to kiss somebody?'"

Cavallari was in great spirits during her cover shoot. "We have so much fun," she said of her tight-knit glam squad while getting ready.

Do you have a self-care routine?

Meditation has become important. I'm someone who loves being alone; that's how I recharge my batteries. Self-care is extremely important, especially as a mom. If my cup is empty, I have nothing to give my kids. If [it's] full, I can be patient and loving and supportive. I didn't understand that until the last four years, and I'm a better mom now.

You have a lot going on. Do you ever struggle with mom guilt?

Because I've gone through divorce, I don't have my kids a hundred percent of the time, and that's given me a good balance. When I don't have them, I go to dinner with friends [or] go to L.A. When I have them, that's it. I'm Mom. I want them to always be able to count on me. My parents didn't make my brother and I their priority, which was hard.

What's a lesson you learned from sharing your life on TV?

I learned at a pretty young age that no matter what you do — whether you're a saint or a wild party child — you can't please everybody. So why not do what makes you happy? US

NOT-SO-BITTER END

In the final moments of the Hills finale, a backdrop is pulled away to reveal the last scene was filmed on a set — a wink to rumors the show was scripted. "I could not have loved the ending better," says Cavallari.

STILL IN TOUCH

Cavallari and her Laguna Beach costars reconnected for an Uncommon James campaign last year. "We've become really close," she says. "I talked to Talan yesterday. I talk to both Alexes [Hooser and Murrell], Jessica [Smith] and Stephen [Colletti]. And Jason [Wahler] lives 15 minutes from me, so we see each other all the time."

Finally, a Good BLT

INGREDIENTS

- 8 thick slices of heirloom tomato
- Sea salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 4 thick slices of sour-dough bread
- 2 tbsp mayonnaise, plus more to taste
- 4 tbsp unsalted butter
- 4 strips of bacon, cooked and finely chopped
- 4 leaves of baby romaine lettuce
- 10 pieces of crispy chicken skins

INSTRUCTIONS

- 1 Place the tomato slices in a single layer on a work surface and season with salt and pepper to taste.
- 2 Using a pastry brush, lightly coat one side of each slice of bread with mayonnaise, about 1/2 tbsp per slice.
- 3 In a nonstick skillet, melt 1 tbsp of butter over medium-high heat. Place one slice of bread in the skillet, mayonnaise side down, and toast for 5 to 6 minutes or until golden brown. Repeat with the remaining slices.
- 4 Use a pastry brush to brush the untoasted side of the bread with a thin layer of mayonnaise. Add some chopped bacon so it sticks to the mayonnaise.
- 5 Layer two leaves of baby romaine lettuce atop the bacon. Add four tomato slices and top with some crispy chicken skins. Top with a slice of bread, toasted side up. Repeat with the other sandwich. Serve immediately.

Any way you slice it, this sandwich is delish! Nick DiGiovanni shares a tasty twist on a classic BLT

When it comes to sandwiches, it doesn't get much better than a BLT. "Growing up, [it] was one of my favorites that my mom made. She kept it simple — a nice spread of mayo, toasted bread, crisp lettuce and some good, thick tomato slices. I've just elevated it a bit further," says MasterChef finalist and social media star Nick DiGiovanni, sharing his recipe — featured in his new cookbook, Knife Drop: Creative Recipes Anyone Can Cook — with Us. "I love this version since each ingredient has been seasoned individually and treated with great care." Plus, the crispy chicken skins are the perfect unexpected add-on. "Try it out," urges DiGiovanni. "You'll be happy you did!"

Sexy Scent Evolution

On her 19th year as the face of Dior's wildly popular J'adore fragrance, Charlize Theron reflects on her beauty journey

→ "There's a J'adore gal in all of us," Charlize Theron says as the brand releases its latest incarnation of the franchise, the new L'Or de J'adore, created by recently appointed perfume creation director Francis Kurkdjian. The scent ($170, dior.com) has a more intense, sensual aroma and a modern, fluid-gold cap — as well as a new campaign shot by Jean-Baptiste Mondino. Here, Theron gives Us an exclusive nod to the past while revealing how she finds power in perfume, her favorite lipstick and more.

You've been the face of J'adore for a while — what's your best memory? One of my best has to be working with the late Peter Lindbergh. We had such a blast shooting the campaign and it's times like those I cherish — the laughter on set and the creative energy.

How do you think the J'adore woman has changed over the years? She's evolved, grown and matured on this journey of life. I know I have!

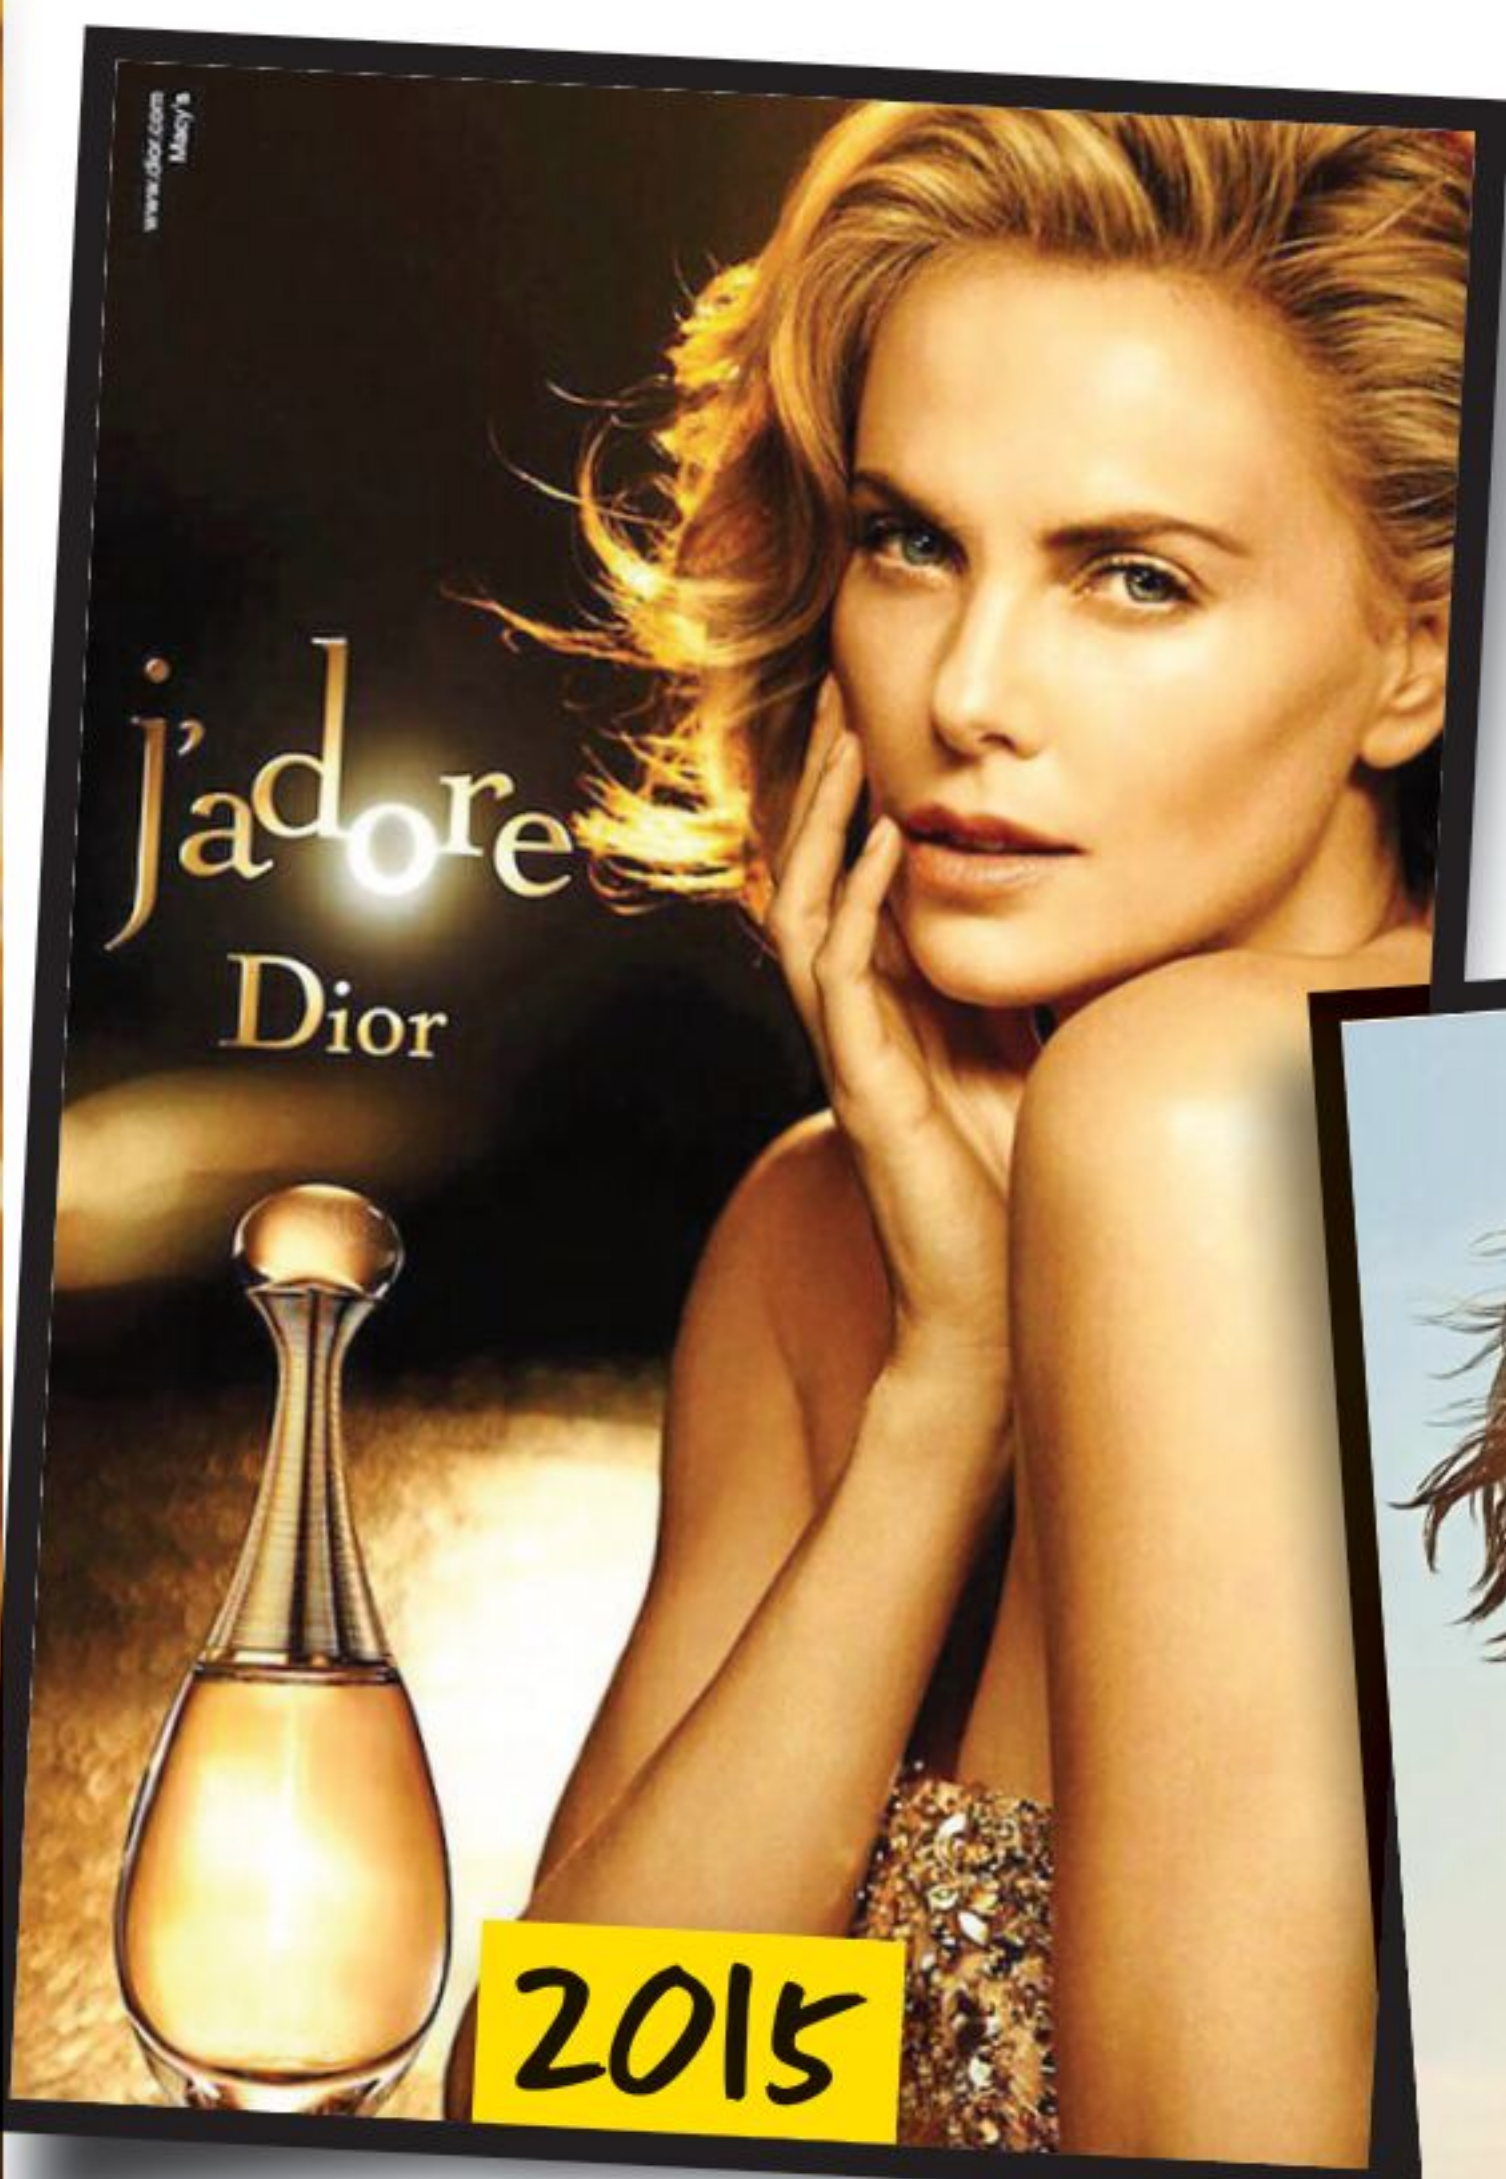

What does being feminine in 2023 mean? For me, it's whatever makes you feel confident and strong in who you are. [It's] the things that empower you and make you feel like you can get up and take on your world. Strength and courage are powerful and ooze femininity.

Describe the new L'Or de J'adore in one word. Sexy.

Do you wear perfume daily? Almost every day. One dab on each wrist, then a spritz on the neck and I'm good to go!

Ever use fragrance to help get into character for roles? Yes, absolutely. Scent is very important in storytelling. Once I lock down the look and the vibe of a character, fragrance is like the cherry on top.

Other than J'adore, what are your fave Dior products? When I feel like going out, my go-to product is the Rouge Dior Forever lipstick. I love a bold red lip!
